March 23, 1936 – April 16, 2024

Geneva (Nall) Dugger was born at Ft. Lynn, AR, on March 23, 1936, and passed away on April 16, 2024. She grew up in Texarkana, AR. Following high school graduation, she began working for the State National Bank in Texarkana until 1959 when she and Cecil Dugger were married. They moved to Mineral Wells, TX, where Cecil taught at the high school. In 1960, they moved to Mt. Pleasant, TX, so Geneva could care for her mother. A year later, they moved to Lawton, OK, when Cecil worked as an instructor of electronics and also served as head of the Technology Department at Cameron Junior College. During this time, Geneva earned an associate degree and then commuted to Chickasha, OK, where she received a bachelor's degree at the Oklahoma College for Women. In 1965, Cecil accepted a position at Oklahoma State University; and Geneva was a substitute teacher at Stillwater High School. In 1968, Geneva and Cecil joined four other families and moved to Thailand for two years. It was during this time that they adopted their daughter, Teresa. In 1970, after their return to Stillwater, Geneva worked for Payne County Youth Services, in 1976, they adopted their son, Jacob. In 1984, Cecil accepted a one-year position in Jamaica, West Indies. Upon their return to Stillwater, Geneva worked at Stillwater Junior High School as the financial secretary, a position she held for ten years. She retired in 1996 after which she volunteered in the gift shop at Stillwater Medical Center. Geneva is survived by her husband (Cecil) of 65 years, their children, Jacob (Ann) and daughter Teresa (Eric Swanbeck), and four grandchildren.
